

GraceLog

Daily Scripture Journal

A quiet space to read, reflect, and remember.

GraceLog is a personal scripture meditation and journaling site built for readers who already spend time in the Word and want a calm, uncluttered place to capture what they notice along the way. The brand should feel warm, grounded, and unhurried — closer to a well-kept notebook than a modern app dashboard.

Brand Principles

- Rooted
Every design choice should feel steady and considered, never trendy for its own sake.
- Unhurried
Generous whitespace and calm pacing invite slow reading, not scrolling.
- Honest
Plain, warm language over polished marketing-speak.

Mark & wordmark

The mark pairs an open book with a leaf rising from the spine — scripture as something living and still growing in the reader. Ink is used for the book, sage for the leaf, unless placed on a dark ground, where cream and gold are used instead (see cover page).

On dark backgrounds

Clear space & minimum size

Keep clear space around the mark equal to the height of the leaf. Do not scale the wordmark below 16px / 12pt in digital use, or stretch, recolor, or rotate the icon.

Sage, ink & gold

A restrained, natural palette: deep ink for structure and text, sage as the living accent, and gold used sparingly for warmth and emphasis.

Fraunces & Inter

Fraunces brings warmth and a literary feel to headings and display moments. Inter keeps body text and interface elements clear and easy to read at small sizes.

Joshua 1:8 — Keep this Book of the Law always on your lips; meditate on it day and night, so that you may be careful to do everything written in it.

Warm, plain, unhurried

Copy should read like a trusted friend, not a productivity tool: short sentences, scripture given room to breathe, and calls to action that feel like invitations.

Use this hero treatment on the homepage only. Elsewhere, keep the ink background reserved for small accents so the cream page stays the dominant surface.
